

History Undergraduate Fellowship

The Department of History is pleased to announce the 2018-2019 competition for the History Undergraduate Fellowship. This fellowship is awarded to support the study of history by FIU History majors and minors.

Students will be selected based on evidence of excellent in historical writing and research, as well as a creative use of historical sources. The selected fellow will receive funding of $200 that can be used to subsidize the costs of further studies in history, including the purchase of books and software; transportation costs to libraries, museums or archives; or other education-related expenses.

Submit a paper from a history class as well as a one-page proposal describing how the funds will be used, and send to jmansill@fiu.edu.